

See Lancaster Seeks Reader's Help

By: Nancy B. Howell, Volunteer for See Lancaster

In August of last year See Lancaster announced the first steps in the development of their new Web Site. Now we are seeking help from the public in collecting information for events that will be important for the promotion of the County.

During February and March we will be advertising the site and how to contact us for collection of information to place on the site. We are looking for any agency, business, organization, or non-profit who is holding an event that benefits the public, promotes visitors and offers information that encourages participation by our own residents.

We want to promote all sports, cultural, church or other groups that have something to offer the public by attending their event. A master year-round calendar will be forthcoming on the Web Site that will direct you to the event you are looking for. If the group has a web site, there will be a link to connect you for further information.

This service will not only promote events, but will also be a source of information for planning. By going to our site you will be able to choose the month proposed and see if there is a conflict. Once the date of your event is chosen, contact us and it will be put on the monthly calendar, which will hopefully keep major date conflicts from occurring.

But we need you to be a part of this, so we encourage each of you who knows of an event or events to contact See Lancaster through our e-mail, phone or mail and help us develop this new partnership. Reach us at seelancaster@seelancaster.org, 803-286-1145 or by mail at PO Box 3315, Lancaster, SC 29721.
